I have been drawing since I was little, I have taken courses but never a real school. I dream of being able to create drawings that make people think and that everyone can see and interpret as they want. I also dream of being able to make comics, I love to tell stories. So far the results I can say I have achieved have been some competitions that I have won, albeit a few, because it is my habit to finish second unfortunately, but being on the podium is still a great result. It will take a long time to realize my dreams, but this could be a beginning and if there is a beginning there must also be an end, and that will be when I have accomplished my goals.

Art for me is the tool through which to know and explore my inner world and then communicate it to others. The recurring theme of my artistic research is the female body: its history and the emotions it holds, expresses, arouses. Being able to reinvent and deform it to my liking is for me a liberating act: the creative possibility of being unique, different, outside the box or the expectations that others (society) have on me. I always draw with oil pastels on paper, it is the tool that allows me to better express corporeity and at the same time instinct.

MARIANA SÁNCHEZ is a self-taught painter, born in Mexico City. In the 90's she ventured into the business side of the art world, while engaged in this work, she had the opportunity to promote the work of renowned figures as Diego Rivera, Rufino Tamayo, David Alfaro Siqueiros, Carlos Merida and other extraordinary painters. Having had the privilege of handling such important pieces of mexican art, she went on to research about the great artists and to learn about the diversity of techniques and styles. This awakened her desire to express her own emotions on the canvas.

Since 2005, the year she painted her first picture, Mariana has expanded her mastery of the materials and techniques. Her work bursts with color and texture, and she has managed to develop her own style, which defines her as an artist. In her paintings, contrasting sensations and a range of fascinating nuances speak of a deep and exciting inner language.

Her artistic career now spans more than a decade in Mexico, the United States and Germany. Mariana's art unveils a surprising pictorial assemblage: a personal story of love and overcoming, of inquiry and challenge, of growth and evolution. Her work is, in short, a celebration of humanism, embodied in the canvas and expressed in color. In 2021 her artwork titled "THE KISS" was selected for the London Art Biennale 2021.
